INTRODUCTION

Iain James Furniture welcomes you to our 2016 - 17 collection of quintessential English-made cabinet furniture.

Founded in 1991, Iain James have developed identifiable collections of timeless reproduction and Art Deco styled furniture, and will be celebrating our 25th anniversary in March 2016.

Each piece is created through the selective use of decorative timbers, subtle inlays, crossbandings and careful elegant furniture design.

Naturally strong coloured timbers such as Burr Walnut and Mahogany are bleached prior to polishing to achieve a softer, mellow patina to the finish.

These important processes ensure the furniture blends favourably into both classical and contemporary settings, complementing the majority of upholstery fabrics and interior décor colour schemes.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Iain James Furniture is respectful of its environmental responsibilities and is a founding member of Woodland Heritage, an organisation with the long-term sustainment of woodlands and forests within the United Kingdom at the forefront of its interests.

Timber materials are only purchased from suppliers who source from legal and sustainable managed forests that are compliant with the European Union Timber Regulations (EUTR).

Thank you for your interest in our furniture and I hope you enjoy browsing our brochure.

OUR FINISH

All of our products are finished using time-honoured traditional hand polishing methods which create a fine patina and depth of colour. The furniture is bleached to help achieve a lighter, softer shade often associated with antiques before being hand coloured, shaded, distressed and polished. The process is completed by carefully dulling the finish using 0000 wire wool, pumice powder, and finishing brush before being waxed.

The finish of our products may feature small knots, marks and cracks which are natural characteristics of wood. Wood is a naturally occurring product and part of its beauty is that no two pieces will be the same. Individual characteristics, grain and markings will vary due to these properties.

All items are hand coloured and shade variations may occur due to material property tolerances, individual hand colouring and natural timber inconsistencies.

Unless otherwise instructed, the product finish exhibits antiquing and distressing techniques. These processes add splashes and scratch marks designed to enhance the final finish.

UNDERSTANDING TIMBER

Due to the natural properties of wood, expansion, shrinkage or movement may occur at any time.

It's important to realise that although the wood is no longer part of the tree it is always trying to return to its natural shape.

Timber naturally responds to wet and dry external conditions and this is also the case in modern day internal environments.

Central heating and underfloor heating in particular reduce the moisture levels in the atmosphere and may encourage joint or veneer movement as may other fluctuations in temperature.

A large bowl of water or humidifier can assist centrally heated rooms. Similarly, dehumidifiers are useful in more humid environments.

Iain James can offer a restoration service to help to remedy any such movement. However, the non-return of movement cannot be guaranteed due to the natural properties of the timber.

CARING FOR YOUR FURNITURE

Frequently dust your furniture with a dry, soft duster and occasionally wax using a high quality polish based on beeswax. This will nourish the wood and help to prevent the surfaces from becoming dry.

The wax should be applied to a manageable sized area and the excess wiped off quickly with a clean cloth to prevent it drying and hardening on the surface making it difficult to remove.

When removing the excess wax, it is important that the cloth in use is clean so that it is not dragged around the surface leaving streaks (as a tip, keep folding the cloth over or have another clean cloth to help avoid this).

The wax should always be removed in the same direction as the original polish was applied. This can be seen by looking closely at the patina where fine finishing lines will display the direction of application.

These finishing lines are a testament to the hand application work done during the many stages of polishing, as opposed to 'off the gun' finishes and are a feature of every piece.

Any spillage should be removed immediately with a damp cloth and subsequently dried. Avoid placing hot objects on to the furniture as they may mark the finish.

Avoid keeping furniture in strong sunlight. This could affect the colour of the piece and could also result in the movement of veneers and timbers. The terms 'Mahogany' or 'Walnut' etc. relate to the finish and do not mean the product is entirely made of that product. All items are handmade and sizes may vary to the dimensions listed. We reserve the right to alter or delete any items.
